The weekly ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence rating is based on 1,028 interviews conducted online and over the telephone during the week to Sunday.

ANZ Economist, Sophia Angala, commented:

ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence rose 1.3pts last week to 85.5pts. This was largely a reversal of falling confidence about the 12-month outlook in the previous week.

Consumer confidence, on a four-week moving average basis, has remained within a tight 85–88pts range since late October 2024. It seems that the upward pressure on confidence from improving domestic incomes is being offset by increasing risk in global economic activity from ongoing tariff announcements.

Alongside the 0.3ppt rise in 'Weekly inflation expectations' last week, global trade uncertainty is likely continuing to impact household confidence.
